For a team to score, a player has to pass to a teammate. For a teammate to score, he needs to be in the right place to receive the ball. For a goalkeeper to make a save, it's to one side of the goal to read the ball. For a goal kick to be scored, it has to be exactly where the goal kicks end. And for a goal to be scored, it must hit the back of the net. In FIFA 19, players controlled the ball with a combination of physical and mental anticipation, with touches dictating the direction and pace of the ball. In FIFA 22, players control the ball with both physical and mental anticipation, with touches dictating the direction and pace of the ball. "This is a time of revolution for FIFA," said Oliver Bierhoff, Creative Director at EA SPORTS. "Players are achieving new levels of realism with physically-based animation of the entire body and new speed of gameplay. They have learned lessons from the past and are tapping into their natural ability and stamina, adapting to evolving conditions and playing a more sophisticated game."
