N Nuclear retinoic acid receptors (RARs) are transcriptional regulators that play a role in cell proliferation and differentiation. BMS 493 is the reverse version of RAR... BMS 502 is the direct counterpart of RAR. They reside in the nucleus (on the chromosome), where they specifically bind to DNA, regulate gene expression, and transcribe mRNA. RARs also secrete rRNA (cells that develop from the endoderm secrete them into the gastric lumen) and rRNA (intestinal epithelium and intestinal villi). In addition, they secrete mRNA and protein. RAR-expressing cells synthesize and secrete proteins that mediate DNA-protein binding. Cells expressing RAR secrete rRNA. dd2bc28256
