smaart spectrum viewer presents a flexible and powerful tool for previewing and editing smaart spectrum and transfer function data. there are many ways that smaart spectrum viewer can be used to fine-tune your parameters during a patient exam. the display can be zoomed in to reveal minute detail, while the smaart spectrum histogram can be adjusted to look like a waterfall display. or using a real-time graphics engine, the spectrum can be seen in whatever time domain you specify using a standard windows graph or line chart function. fir designers smaart visualization chart brings the values from your live measurements up on screen as a nice looking line graph. if you wish to see a waterfall of the measurement values, simply change the measurement type from realtime to recording. from there, you can see a histogram of any selected measurement from your list of grabbed measurements. this can be a good way to see how your measurements are changing over time, even when graphically boring. no need for an import log-in with smaart live. smaart live automatically logs you in to fir designers. view your measurements in two different ways. if you click the measurement name, smaart live will bring up an smaart spectrum viewer. if you click on the waveform display, smaart live will zoom into the live graphs. in the audio & video tab, smaart audio can capture live sound in the white area of the screen. smaart video can capture live video from your camera or other devices attached to the computer. if you are using a camera that connects to the computer via hdmi, you can opt for video capture instead of just audio capture. use the 4:2:2 yuv transfer function for the video to process the video signal into a suitable format for fir designers audio and video import.
