The Cupertino company on Monday outlined its newest line of products, in the form of two new "Pro" tablets. The new devices will be the first to feature touch ID, which lets users unlock devices with their fingerprint or facial recognition. They will also support wireless charging, a feature first introduced on the Touch ID-enabled iPhone s last year. Apple also unveiled new color options for its iPhone. The new colors include a partnership with Pantone on a range of colors, including "Hypersonic Blue," "Bold Cobalt," and "Scandale Grey." The company also revealed two new iPhone colors: Midnight Blue and Rose Gold. Apple first launched rose-gold iPhones in 2015; they will be available in an entirely new Midnight Blue color. This year also marked Apple's first of two major new Pro iPads alongside the new iPad Pro models. Apple's two new Pro iPads are 64GB in size , are faster, better-looking, and lighter than 2015's previous-gen devices. They also come with an all new, more powerful A10X processor. For a year, I have been using Lightroom and have been amazed at how I can organize images in virtually any way I want. With Lightroom, I can quickly find my images by searching the date on a computer or on my phone. I am very happy with the JPEG grouping tools that let me drag multiple images into one small group right off my desktop without having to exceed the 4GB setting on my computer.
